

REVIEW OF THE MARKETS; AND REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

SOME OF THE FAMOUS HORSES IN THE BROOKLYN HANDICAP.

Of the famous horses in the Brooklyn Handicap Ethelbert, the Metropolitan winner, is owned by Perry Belmont; Jean Beraud, the swift son of his Highness, is the property of ex-Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney; Imp carries the colors of Harness & Brossman, and Box is owned by W. Showalter. Among the other well known horses are Raffaelo, Sirathousan, Kries Kringel, Batten and John Bright.

A VIRGINIA PRODUCT.

THE HUMBLE PEANUT IS MAKING ITS WAY AS AN ARTICLE OF EXPORT.

From a late report on the subject, received at the State Department, it seems that the hitherto humble peanut, one of the staple crops of Virginia and North Carolina, is rapidly coming to the front with a commercial value difficult to reconcile with the general idea of that edible.

United States Consul Robert P. Skinner has this to say of the peanut trade in the port of Marseilles, France, where he is stationed: "More oil is extracted from oleaginous seeds in the city of Marseilles than in any other trade center in Europe. The crushing of peanuts constitutes one of the most important branches of the industry, and the extent of the business may be judged to some degree by the arrivals of peanuts in this city during the years 1897, 1898 and 1899, as follows: 40,233 tons, 68,852 tons and 70,820 tons, respectively."

Concerning the uses of the peanut oil, the Consul reports that it is the most polymorphous of all oils, adapting itself to all purposes, including nutrition, lighting, lubrication and blending. It is the most difficult to detect when mixed with olive oil, because its chemical reaction is white.

The best qualities of peanut oil are used for table purposes—either pure or mixed, with olive oil, cotton oil or sesame oil. As an illuminant, it gives a soft, white, odorless light, and it is highly rated as a lubricant, and for this purpose its characteristic acid has to be neutralized. Peanut oil can be used in every industry and in every department of business when it can compete with other vegetable oils in price, and for many purposes it is superior to the other oils. Its principal uses are for human consumption, as in salad oil and in artificial butter, and for the manufacture of soap. Peanut oil soap is the real type of the world famous white Marseilles soap. The supply of peanuts comes mainly from the States of Virginia and Africa. A considerable quantity of American peanuts have been received in Marseilles and the impression among the oil makers is that the American product is richer in oil than any of the other products.

It is a fact not generally known that vast quantities of peanut oil are made in China, where for centuries the lowly product has been cultivated for food and oil, the oilcake being used as fertilizer and for fuel. The Chinese type, however, is not as rich in oil as several other varieties.

The flavor of well-purified peanut table oil is not unlike the best grades of olive oil, and its color is of a rich, delicate wine that gives a shade of green, similar in this respect to refined olive oil. In burning this oil, as has been said, without odor, and burns without detriment to the wick, and unlike many other oils of vegetable origin, peanut oil will not become rancid or sticky with age if properly prepared and purified.

The production of this oil in the United States is of no particular value, the amount being exceedingly small, but with the advancing needs of the country for oil it is not improbable that something may be done in this direction bringing into value thousands of acres of land worthless for any other purpose.

ELECTRIC ELEVATORS VS. HYDRAULIC.

(Reginald Pelham Bolton, in The Engineering Magazine for June.)

It may be asserted that electrical elevators are more economical per se, that a further gain is obtainable by operation in conjunction with lighting work, and that the generating plant required is the additional cost of a single generator unit, also, that there is a general advantage in the combination of all services under one character of power, finally, that the service can be operated by outside supply without the expense of installing a generating plant.

These assumptions have been the cause of much dispute, and in a number of cases where incompletely studied have led to decisions in favor of the adoption of electrical operation of elevator machinery. The results of the use of the electrical high-speed machines are now before us and can be briefly summarized as follows:

Without the addition of a storage battery, the high-speed electric elevator is not so economical as the hydraulic.

The additional cost of a storage battery, with interest and depreciation thereon, outweighs any economic gain obtainable.

Without a battery, the service cannot be combined satisfactorily with lighting work.

A higher class and greater extent of labor is necessary with electrical elevator machines.

The cost of maintenance and repairs is largely in excess of the same items with hydraulic machines.

The cost of outside electrical supply is too great to admit of economical consideration in this class of building.

The reason for this disappointing result, to my mind, is to be found in the basic fact that this service is a radically unsuitable application of electricity.

INDIGESTION

Cured by Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure

"I suffered over two years with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia, unable to eat or sleep. I tried several physicians and different remedies, but they only helped me for a short time. A friend advised me to take Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken three boxes, and am now feeling better than I have for two years. Have a good appetite, sleep well and have none of the symptoms of indigestion or dyspepsia. I have gained ten pounds in weight within a couple of months. I am taking pleasure in recommending Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure wherever I can, and several of my friends are taking it with marked results."—L. A. Arnold, Cinn.

SALE OF VALUABLE HOTEL PROPERTY ON MAIN STREET, IN THE CITY OF NORFOLK, VIRGINIA.

By direction of the owner, we will offer for sale at public auction, on

WEDNESDAY, the 27TH DAY OF JUNE,

1900, AT 12 O'CLOCK M.,

at the rooms of the Norfolk Real Estate and Stock Exchange, No. 255 Main street, in the City of Norfolk, Virginia, a certain WELL-KNOWN PROPERTY, situated at the southeast corner of Main and Church streets, in the City of Norfolk, Virginia, known as the HOTEL NORFOLK (formerly New Furcell House).

The building is of brick, five stories, and contains sixty-nine bedrooms, bar and billiard rooms, parlors, barber shop, baths and all necessary appointments. The lot is bounded as follows: Beginning at the intersection of the western side of Calver's lane with Main street and running thence along Main street, westwardly (50) fifty feet, more or less, to Church street, thence southwardly along Church street about one hundred and fifty feet, thence eastwardly to Calver's lane, and thence northwardly along the western side of Calver's lane to the place of beginning.

The location of this property at the intersection of the two most prominent business thoroughfares of a rapidly growing city, make it especially desirable for a commercial hotel, and we invite the particular attention of enterprising hotel men to this sale.

TERMS—One-fourth cash; balance on a credit of one, two and three years, evidenced by promissory notes carrying legal interest from day of sale, secured by deed of trust on the property, which deed shall be drawn, executed and recorded at purchaser's expense, or the purchaser, at his option.
